ABSTRACT

There is a completely new world to discover in the oceans, lakes, and rivers--a world filled with an amazing variety of fish. While all fish live and breathe underwater, each type looks very different and develops its own unique living habits. In this videotape, students learn more about the body structures of fish as well as how they reproduce and protect themselves in their underwater environment. This videotape correlates to the following National Science Education Standards for Life Science: characteristics of organisms, life cycles of organisms, and organisms and environments. The videotape is accompanied by a teacher's guide and a hands-on student experiment. (CCM)
